

Re-imagining Helston's High Streets

A new public realm is proposed on Coinagehall Street, with proposed traffic one-way down, and access up to Lady Street only. Spaces for parking and loading are maintained to the south of Coinagehall. Limited loading and trading spaces will be provided within the public realm.

COINAGEHALL STREET

Making space for people and events, celebrating Grylls Monument within the town centre...

Before and after - looking down Coinagehall Street. Artist's impression showing proposed new Public Realm space.

Plan of Coinagehall Street - proposals

Car parking retained to the southern side of Coinagehall Street.

Proposed new public realm space on Coinagehall Street

One side of Coinagehall Street will be given back to people, cyclists, traders and events.

Coinagehall Street c. 1890s (image Kresen Kernow).

Coinagehall Street Market Day (image Kresen Kernow).

Lower Coinagehall Street to Grylls Monument early 1900's

Coinagehall Street today is dominated by traffic.

Creating space for markets and events.

View down Coinagehall street - existing

An artist impression looking down Coinagehall street with proposed new public realm.

